

The Glebe, St Ippolyts, Hertfordshire

working together for better housing

The vicar of the church in St Ippolyts identified an urgent need for affordable housing for local people who were struggling to be able to stay in the village. He approached Howard Cottage with the possibility of using a redundant piece of church land available next to the vicarage and allotments.

Working closely with the church and the parish council, Howard Cottage was able to build six two and three bedroom houses which were let to people living in the village or who had a local connection with St Ippolyts.
